If gases escape from your device (gas smell), immediately move to a location with good air circulation and no ignition sources where the leak can be detected and repaired. Check the tightness of your device outdoors only. Never look for leaks while the device is running. Use soap water or a leak detection spray instead.

Important information before starting the use

Assembly and settings of the manufacturer must not be changed. It can be harmful to make structural changes to the device yourself, to remove parts or to use parts other than those that the manufacturer has designated for the device.

This device may only be operated with the Special Gas cartridge AT 3000 in conjunction with the CH oxygen cylinder. Even if the guarantee of the Special Gas cartridge AT 3000, the CH Universal Gas cylinder and the Special Gas cartridge AT 3000 (2 + 3) may also be used. The containers (Universal Gas and oxygen) can be easily attached in hardware or specialist stores.

The Special Gas cartridge AT 3000 (2 + 3) and oxygen cylinder (no. 2)

It can be dangerous to try to connect it to other types of gas.

Warning! Before fitting the oxygen cylinder and the Special Gas cartridge AT 3000 (2 + 3) to the extraction device

Use a 4 x 3, proceed as follows:

Before commissioning

Before starting work, make sure that all valves are securely closed. The oxygen cylinder (no. 2) is mounted on the extraction device (no. 1) by 4 turning it counter-clockwise. The Special Gas cartridge AT 3000 (2 + 3) is attached to the extraction device (no. 2) by turning it clockwise. Make sure the thread runs smoothly. If it is screwed on at an angle, the device may be damaged and damaged. Before putting the device into operation, check whether the connections between the containers and the regulating valves are gas-tight (e.g. by using a leak detector).

Starting-up

Open the gas regulating valve (no. 6) on the special gas extraction device to activate the gas supply. The gas regulating valve (no. 10) and the oxygen regulating valve (no. 11) on the handle are still firmly closed. Start by opening the gas regulating valve (no. 10) marked "Gaz". The cartridge of gas universal (CH) AT 3000 at 7500 (3) propane, 70% butane, 30% propylene will be used. Then, ignite the gas at the nozzle tip (no. 13). The flame pattern should now move away from the nozzle tip (no. 13) and should start directly at the nozzle tip without separating from it. If the flame still does not move the tip of the nozzle, the gas supply using the gas regulating valve (no. 11) and then immediately close the oxygen regulating valve on the handle (no. 10) in both cases by turning it in the "–" direction. Bring the hoses to normal air pressure. In the event of work interruptions, you should always close both the gas and oxygen supplies.

After using the device, always disconnect the regulating valves (no. 4 + 5) from the extracting containers (no. 2 + 3) and then immediately close the oxygen regulating valve on the handle (no. 10) in both cases by turning it in the "–" direction. Bring the hoses to normal air pressure. In the event of work interruptions, you should always close both the gas and oxygen supplies.

Switching off

When switching off the device, the gas supply must always be switched off first! Only close the gas supply at the gas regulating valve (no. 6) by turning it in the direction "–". (See the instruction on the knob of the gas regulating valve). By closing the regulating valve on the gas regulating valve, the flame on the burner goes out after a short delay. This delay is caused by residual quantities of gas remaining in the hose. Once the flame has gone out, close the gas regulating valve on the handle (no. 11) and then immediately close the oxygen regulating valve on the handle (no. 10) in both cases by turning it in the "–" direction. Bring the hoses to normal air pressure. In the event of work interruptions, you should always close both the gas and oxygen supplies.

Important notes

Unanswered questions (no. 2 + 3) are unanswered, the extraction valves close automatically and no more gas or oxygen can escape.

Disposal of containers

Make sure the device has cooled down completely with the valves (gas and oxygen) before storing it in a safe and dry place. The same applies to transport, although you must ensure that the device and the containers (gas and oxygen) are completely empty.

Maintenance + Repair + Service

Use the replacement parts specified only. Never operate a device with damaged parts. Repairs must only be carried out by an authorised local repair or dealer or the manufacturer. In the event of repairs, return the device to your point of sale or contact your local authorised dealer for more information. Contact information for CH customer service can be found on the last page.

Disposing of the device

The device is made of recyclable materials. Contact your local waste disposal office or waste disposal company for disposal and recycling of your device.
